

Works notice

Domain Road Reopening

Domain Road

Monday 14 October 2024

With major works at Anzac Station now complete, Domain Road will reopen to traffic on Monday 14 October.

When we'll be working

- This section of road will be reopened on Monday 14 October 2024

The timing of work may change depending on weather.

What we'll be doing

- Removing the water barriers currently in place on Domain Road (at St Kilda Road and near Dallas Brooks Drive)
- Keeping station infrastructure, including the station entrance and passenger lift fenced off until the Metro Tunnel opens in 2025.

What to be aware of

- Domain Road will reopen to traffic and cyclists between St Kilda Road and Dallas Brooks Drive on Monday 14 October
- The left turn from St Kilda Road to Domain Road will reopen
- The right and left turn from Domain Road to St Kilda Road will reopen
- Please follow the traffic signals, signage and line marking in place
- The footpath on both sides of Domain Road and pedestrian crossings at St Kilda Road will be open
- On street parking will be available along Domain Road, where signed.

Return of public transport to Domain Road

In the coming months, bus Route 605 will extend further along Domain Road with two new stops.

The Route 58 tram will continue to run along Toorak Road West, providing a shorter and direct path to St Kilda Road and maintaining the same platform interchange for citybound passengers at the Anzac Station tram stop.

We know the Metro Tunnel will change the way people use public transport services in the Anzac precinct.

Our planning will consider new travel patterns once the Metro Tunnel opens – as well as community feedback, infrastructure requirements and vehicle movements in the area before making a decision on the delivery and timing of any network changes.

More information on the bus service changes will be available closer to the start of services at ptv.vic.gov.au, the Journey Planner app or by calling 1800 800 007.
