

Construction update

L-beam being lifted into place for the Mernda-bound rail bridge

Works are continuing to remove the dangerous and congested level crossing at Keon Parade and build a new Keon Park Station.

Upcoming works

We'll build a new bus stop at the intersection of High Street and Hughes Parade. To do this we're installing drainage, pedestrian paths and road pavement.

We'll work on connecting the L-beams to form the U-shape of the Mernda-bound rail bridge. Handrails will then be fitted, and crews will lay ballast – crushed rock that keeps the railway sleepers in place – and complete track work.

The new Keon Park Station is coming together with a focus on the station platform canopy and connecting essential services.

Impacted residents and businesses will be notified in advance of night works taking place. There will be changes to how you travel around the area. See overpage.
